"Efficient universal education is the mother of national prosperity."

So said Emerson one hundred years ago and so say all those who are vitally interested in our country today. We of Elgin High School who are profiting by a carefully planned educational system are realizing more than ever that tomorrow's world depends on today's education.

We know that we must become intelligent, useful citizens: that as well as preparing for a life occupation and home making, we must prepare and train ourselves in the social graces and in culture so that our country reaches that place of fine leadership in the world for which we hope.

Perhaps in the years to come this book will help us understand what this school has done with its broad curriculum and its varied activities to prepare us for that tomorrow.

to the boys

of Elgin High School who would have received their diplomas with us, but now are gone to serve their country, we dedicate the 1944 Maroon.

senior story

The Class of 1944 entered Engin High School in 1940 and soon became active in school functions. They began to organize in their first year. Arlie Rein was elected president; Walter Rust vice-president, Jack Burmaster, secretary, and Paul Ciraulo treasurer. Miss Elsie Fletcher was their advisor.

A class council, composed of homeroom representatives and class officers, was formed. This council was active throughout the four years. The class constitution was written by this group.

In their sophomore year they numbered 460. They were the largest sophomore class that E.H.S. had ever had. They participated in the tuberculosis test, which was given by the Kane County Medical Association. Officers were Walter Rust, president; Nelly Ventress, vice-president; and Bill Snellgrove, secretary.

The juniors, with their kelly green and white class sweaters, began to accept their class pennant. The pennant for this year was "Ever Since Eve" and was presented in May. The class pennant designed by Carolyn Hameister, was presented. The junior year came to a close with the junior-senior prom.

This last year was a busy and eventful one. The class was lead by Austin Hansen, president; Bill Snellgrove, vice-president; and Nan Jean Hansen, secretary. For their service project, the class cleaned all the old banners.

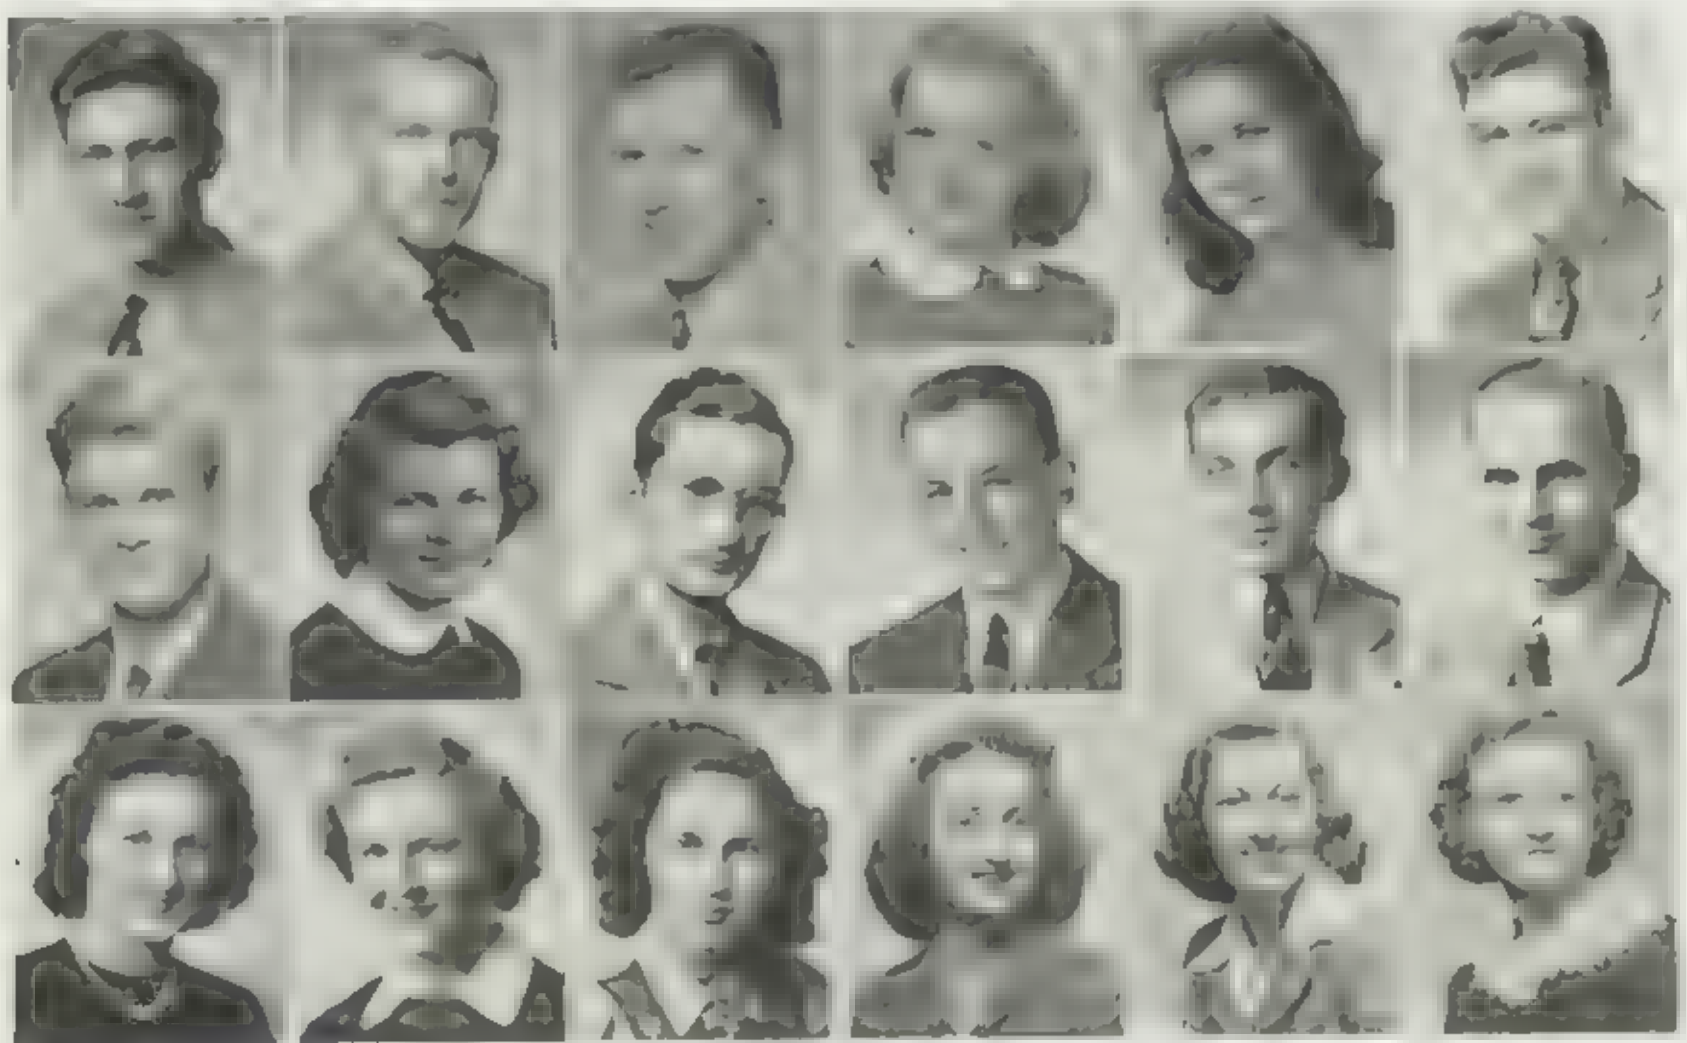

The seniors managed the selling of refreshments during the football games and sponsored a class party in the boys gym. Tuberculosis tests were again taken by the seniors.

In November the class play, "The Late Christopher Bean," was staged. Many seniors benefited by Career Day and vocational guidance lectures.

Green and white carnations were chosen as the class flowers and "Onward, Forward, Upward" as their motto.

Elgin High School is very fortunate to have supervisors who have the directive ability, initiative, and spirit of cooperation which are necessary in a school of this size. Mr. Dixon, our principal, is constantly striving to improve conditions at Elgin High School for the students and faculty.

The position of assistant principal and boys adviser is held by Mr. Larsen. He is always willing to give counsel to those boys who seek his guidance. Miss Elma Engelbrecht, able and cooperative director of student adjustment and girls adviser, has personal conferences with the students to assist them in solving difficult problems and gives advice to all girls who seek it.

The administrative council is composed of those already mentioned above; Mr. Orrin Thompson, representing the all-school administration; the department heads—Mr. R. S. Cartwright, Mr. J. A. Kraft, Miss Hazel Linkfield, Miss Wilda Logan, Mr. Charles L. Mornill, Miss Margaret Newman, Miss Adah Pratt, who also represents Student Council, Mr. P. E. Taylor, Mr. E. C. Waggoner; class sponsors—Miss Elsie Fletcher, Mr. E. C. Waggoner, Mr. Walter Wilson, Miss Mary Peters; and classroom teachers elected by the faculty—Miss Mary Smith, Miss Hortense Wilson, and Miss Glennie Morrow. This council meets weekly and helps plan important school activities.

English is the basic subject for all study for if a man can't express himself well and has little knowledge of his own language, he can not be very successful.

Many officials in the armed forces of our country have stated that English, vocabulary in particular, is one of the factors seriously considered when determining promotions.

In an effort to fit students not only for their communicational needs in business and in college but also for these requirements in the armed forces, the English department this year has laid added emphasis on vocabulary and other reading and writing skills.

A sound English program is of the utmost value to the student, and such a program is stressed at Elgin High School. Three years of English taken during the first, second, and fourth year are required. During the third year a student may take speech, dramatics, journalism, or literary types.

physical education and health

The physical education department has worked out a well rounded plan that will keep students physically fit and mentally alert to meet arising problems of life.

In the boys gym classes the boys learn the different commands and drill exercises. They also receive a little training in basketball, tumbling, wrestling, and baseball. At different times throughout the semester, tests are given to determine if the boys are in good condition; for the most part they are in very good condition. The gym classes meet three times a week for underclassmen and daily for seniors.

The girls physical education program has changed from a three-year course of two hours per week to four full years of three hours a week. The gym classes offer of calisthenics, sports, rhythm exercises, and modern folk dancing.

In addition to gym work, courses in health are offered to freshmen and sophomores; first aid to juniors, and home nursing to seniors. If the girls qualify in the health course they receive American Red Cross credit.

The prevention of disease in the Elgin community is stressed by Mrs. Mabel E. Silliman, supervising nurse, and her assistant Mrs. Marie Schran.

On January 11 the Kane County Medical Association offered a free tuberculosis test to any teacher or senior wanting it. The results have proved helpful to many students.

This year the science department has strived to make its program more concentrated and better fitted for both wartime and peace time needs. Fundamental science is becoming more valuable to the individual who will immediately take his place in the industrial world after graduation and to the student who will enter college or any branch of the armed forces. The physical sciences, such as chemistry and physics, are now used as the basis for teaching these fundamentals.

All freshmen are required to take general science, a study of our environment and its effects on us. It also includes a general study of all the sciences.

The composition and functions of plant and animal life are studied in biology.

Physiology is an important foundation for the study of medicine, as well as healthful, everyday living.

Physiography is a study of natural resources, meteorology, land locations, and rock formations. Some time is also spent in learning the principles of global map-reading.

In chemistry the student learns about matter and its changes. In the laboratory he proves for himself the reliability of facts established by someone else instead of accepting as infallible everything he learns.

The principles and practical applications of heat, light, mechanics, sound, and electricity are taught in physics. This training will benefit the student in all types of work.

Are you planning to be a bombardier, a meteorologist, an astronomer, an architect or an engineer? If you intend to follow one of these vocations, you must take mathematics. Mathematics furnishes a good foundation for any type of career.

The mathematics department offers business arithmetic, algebra, plane and solid geometry, and trigonometry. Business arithmetic affords excellent training for students interested in bookkeeping. Elementary, advanced, and college algebra furnish the fundamentals for more advanced mathematical studies. Geometry is the study of the properties and measurements of lines, angles, surfaces, and solids.

An intensive program of the practical applications of mathematical laws and theorems is offered to students who soon plan to join the armed forces.

For more information contact the department.

offered to the students under the direction of Miss Mary Peters.

Elgin High School's business department offers typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, business law, salesmanship, and office training. Through these many students find the type of work they are most interested in doing.

Students are employed as typists, stenographers, bookkeepers, and other office assistants. Ninety-six per cent of the business graduates have experience in conjunction with their business subjects.

The department also sponsors a distributive education program, which is made up of students employed in downtown retail establishments, and also directs a temporary employment bureau for the entire school to help meet the local manpower needs.

The department is open to all students.

industrial arts

The great demand for skilled and semi-skilled help during the present emergency has greatly emphasized the importance of industrial arts. We have cooperated with local industrial, state, and federal agencies in providing the type of training needed to further the war effort. Young people with shop experience have been in great demand and have been found most satisfactory

When this war is successfully concluded, the people with mechanical ability and training will find many new fields and opportunities available, which at present are unknown to the general public

The study of vocational agriculture in Elgin High School is concerned with the practicalities of learning to farm as well as learning how to farm. The theories studied in the classroom are correlated with actual practices on the farm, and in this way the directed and planned discussions are of more significance and value

A program of directed or supervised farm practice provides for the application of knowledge and skills as an essential and final step in rounding out a boy's training. Records are kept of all project work by the student, thus adding to his experience and aiding him materially in determining wherein he was successful and wherein he must modify or alter his operations. Then, too, some consideration is directed toward arousing avocational or leisure-time activities

Vocational guidance is incorporated into the study of agriculture in order that each pupil may derive a greater benefit from the skills he masters. Thus his education for economic productiveness will be more efficient and fruitful

social science

The aim of this department is to give the students an understanding of past and present civilizations and to present courses that will prepare them for the future.

The social science department offers to the students a well-rounded group of studies. In the psychology classes the students are given aptitude tests to determine in which vocation they are interested. They also study many personal problems of psychological principles.

In the world history and modern history classes courses are offered which will acquaint the student with the activities of mankind from the beginning of recorded time to the present day. American history classes study the development of our country and attempt to gain a better understanding of our government and a fuller appreciation of the rights and privileges which are ours. All the history classes have recently placed more emphasis on Latin America and the Far East.

Through the study of economics the student is given a better understanding of the economic and business world. He also learns the fundamental problems of consumption so that he may be a more intelligent consumer of economic goods. He is also taught how various types of economic organizations operate and how our capitalistic system functions.

The purpose of social problems is to develop an understanding of the major problems of society through wide reading of current material and frank, free class discussions.

foreign language

Through international communication and transportation the United States is being brought closer to the other nations of the world, thus making a knowledge of foreign languages play a more important part in understanding the work

Four foreign languages are offered in Elgin High School, each making its particular contribution to the student. Some background in German helps a great deal in music, the ministry, science, aviation, and nursing Portuguese is the language of the future in commerce and science. With the stressing of international relations with South America, Spanish is valuable in Pan-American business and communication

Latin is considered the basic language for many professions as law and medicine

fine arts

The music department offers many opportunities to students who are interested in instrumental or choral work. This year a semester course in harmony was offered. In the orchestra band and cappella choir, and glee clubs, students find valuable training and have the opportunity to learn good music. Throughout the year the music department keeps the public's morale high by furnishing entertaining assemblies and concerts

Art for everyday living is offered by our high school art department. Besides learning the basic elements of art, the students endeavor to develop their creative ability and to learn to appreciate beauty in all its forms. The art department furnishes many murals and other work to help make the school interesting and beautiful

The Junior Red Cross is the American Red Cross in the school. This year the Elgin High School Chapter boasts a hundred-per-cent membership. The membership drive collections were in turn contributed to the National Children's Fund which gives help to children in all parts of the world.

One hundred small garments were made by the clothing classes; and plaid short story books, holiday menus, and favors were created by the art classes. The workshop class made twenty bed tables, fifty bed-side tables, and fifty smoking tables.

The girls also made many other things with great success. They also made covers for old bath towels for the navy and rescue ships.

The highschool girls also helped with the collections at the theaters during the National Red Cross drive.

Library Club

The library club assists students in finding books, magazine articles, and other material that is available in the library.

The club consists of sixteen members, and three meetings are held each semester. Two or three members are in the library each period to discharge and shelve the books.

The chief social activity of this season was an educational and enjoyable field trip to the Chicago Public Library.

John Trent acted as president this year, with Robert Paulus as secretary, and Donald Detloff as treasurer. Miss Ethel Hoaglund is sponsor

Cafeteria Workers

Students working in the cafeteria not only help prepare and serve the meals, but also help plan the meals and budget them

This group has learned to serve nourishing well-balanced meals on the few points that they are allowed. They learn how to select wisely and serve the correct way. They have served luncheons and three evening dinners, in addition to helping at noon

Each of them made a booklet explaining and illustrating food costs, marketing, menu planning, salesmanship, and development of personality in serving the public

Mrs. Parlasca is in charge of the cafeteria

The boys also repaired all the public address systems in the school. This spring they made possible the broadcasting of the Champaign Tournament basketball games to students remaining at school. The tense, exciting moments will be remembered

The film was the longest film is 1,300 feet long and is in technicolor. It was prepared so that new shots can be added. Sound is also connected with this film

girls club

Every girl who enters EHS automatically becomes a member of the Girls Club. The purpose of the club is to bring about cooperation and friendliness among all the girls. It also aims to be of service, not only to the girls, but to the school and community as well. The business of the club is decided on by the cabinet which is made up of representatives from all four classes.

The big project for the year has been the furnishing of room 139 as a lounge for the girls during the noon hour. "Cookies for the Rookies" was another project that was done in cooperation with the Junior Red Cross, as was also the towel square project for navy hospitals.

Once a month the girls have an assembly in the auditorium, at which they have presented style shows, skits, and a Christmas program.

Each year the upper classmen give a party for the freshmen to help the new girls get acquainted.

Can you imagine what T.H.S. would be like without a band playing at our football and basketball games, marching in our parades and thrilling us in ceremonies? Of course you can't. And this year the band has again put in a busy and successful year under the direction of Mr. Robert Garrison.

They participated in the Community Band parade, the Army-Navy band and other parades. They held four concerts and gave many performances. They played at the homecoming dance, the Army-Navy dance, and the band also played at the homecoming dance. In their concert the band also played at the homecoming dance. The band also played at the homecoming dance.

"Prelude Symphony," and music from "Hansel and Gretel," "Stardust," "Getting Sentimental Over You," and "Stormy Weather" are only three of the many popular numbers the band has played.

Because of the many difficulties and other problems, the band did not take part in the parade at the Army-Navy "E" Band at M. G. R.

Publications Board

publications board

The Publications Board directs the policies of the highschool publications and approves the budgets and expenditures. The board is made up of the principal; the faculty advisers, editors, and business managers of the publications, and a Student Council representative.

The annual publications dinner was held early in May, served by Mrs. Parlasca and the cafeteria group. Besides a talk of publishing interest, awards were presented.

This year Charles Jacobs and Curtis Gene Thompson represented the "Mirror"; Grace Szosz and Jacob Pollack, the "Maroon"; Shirley Webb and Robert Paulus, "Spring Reigns." Carolyn Hameister was chosen as representative for the Student Council. Miss Brandes, Miss Newman, Miss Stoffregen, and Mr. Dixon were the faculty members on the board.

Under the helpful guidance of Miss Margaret Newman, adviser, and Miss Hazel Linkfield, assistant, the Maroon editorial staff manages the entire editing of the annual Maroon. At several problems presented themselves that had to be solved before the book was ready to go to press. Among these were the shortage and rising cost of paper, printing, and supplies. However, a plain, but attractive, inexpensive yearbook was completed.

Students who assisted the editorial staff were Grace Szosz, editor; Barbara Nelson and Margaret Damisch, associate editors; Ray Giddens, student photographer; Richard Damisch, layout artist; Dick Swenson, cartoonist; Carol Rhoades and Lloyd Rudolph, sports editors; Blanche Saxe, Mary Jane Klinger, Mary Lane Hubbell, Annette Schultz, Mary Lou Rohling, Mary Lund, and Margaret Danielek, assistant editors; Carol Sill, Evelyn Steinmann, Elaine Lagerstrom, typists; and Joan Havercroft, Marilyn Pierson, Marilyn Hopp, Robert Creed, Lucille Siems, Neil Hebeisen, and Mary Ann Stewart.

While this group worked industriously to get material for the book, the business staff was not idle. An assembly program launched their campaign for student subscriptions, while Mr. Morrill's salesmanship class successfully sold over one hundred fifty patrons for the book. Jacob Pollack was business manager, and Doev Cohen was associate business manager.

During the past year first Charles Jacobs and then Shirley Westerbeck served as editors-in-chief and Gene Thompson as business manager of the 'Mirror'. Page editors were Shirley Westerbeck and Helen Pata. The sports staff included Walt Grisham, editor, assisted by Bill Warner, Gene Termini, Bill S. Warner, Jim Raager, and Mitch Weisner. Special writers were Norm Fugate, Joan Eggert, Sid Herman, Pat McCarthy, and Shirley Webb. The reporters were Jackie Dolby, Joan Havercroft, Roy Morkemo, Wanda Engle, and Gwen Rosier.

This year the record for the most subscriptions was set with about 1550 subscriptions being sold to students. About 125 copies of each issue of the 'Mirror' were mailed to servicemen, and 20 issues were mailed to people working or otherwise.

Some of the credit for this year's successful paper should go to the advertising staff, which was composed of Emma Lou Phillips, Marilyn Massa, Ted Iverson, George Peek, Arlene Raywood, Joan Collins, Bob LaForce, and George Meadows. The circulation manager was Jackie Dolby, and Miss Catherine Brandes was the adviser.

The Maroonettes of this year proved to be a very strong combination ending the season with a record of five wins, one tie, and one loss. The Maroonettes had a very strong punch which was helped by the fact that they averaged 20 points per game to their opponents 5.

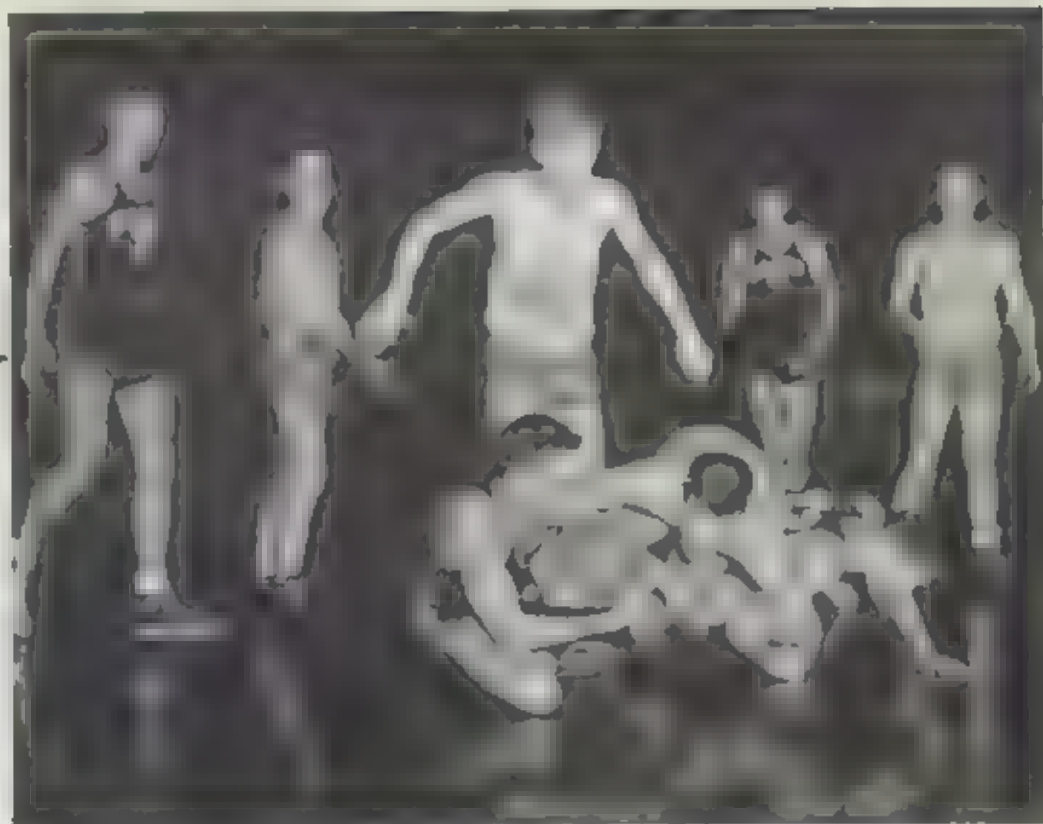

The outstanding feature of the team was the fact that there were two squads of boys who received letters. This was not because it was that twenty-two players had contributed enough to earn letters. This proved a good team in the next few years.

This year's wrestling team proved to be a fairly successful aggregation. It won three matches and lost five, but it doesn't tell the full story. Several matches were lost only by a few points.

By far the most successful man on the squad was John Salisbury, who was captain. He won seven matches and lost one, scoring 31 points to his opponents 3.

Brother James improved as the season went along and finished very strong by placing second in the state meet at 105 pounds. He scored 29 points.

Swenson, the 105-pounder, had a record of 13-14, and Kramer at 115 had a record of 13-22. At the 145-pound level Ed Franzen very capably filled Bud Roberts' shoes, ending the season with a 13-14 record after Roberts retired with a 3-3 score.

At 155 three different boys wrestled Traub 0-5, Snellgrove 0-8, and Peterson, who did well
